UNITED STATES OF AMERICA UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN NORTHERN DIVISION

ANTHONY ROBERTS #296768,
Plaintiff,	Case No. 2:07-cv-218
v.	Honorable Robert Holmes Bell
THOMAS OBRADOVICH, et al.,
Defendants.	/

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

This is a civil rights action brought by a state prisoner pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. The Court has granted Plaintiff leave to proceed in forma pauperis, and Plaintiff has paid the initial partial filing fee. Under the Prison Litigation Reform Act, Pub. L. No. 104-134, 110 Stat. 1321 (1996), the Court is required to dismiss any prisoner action brought under federal law if the complaint is frivolous, malicious, fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, or seeks monetary relief from a defendant immune from such relief. 28 U.S.C. §§ 1915(e)(2), 1915A; 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(c). The Court must read Plaintiff's pro se complaint indulgently, see Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520 (1972), and accept Plaintiff's allegations as true, unless they are clearly irrational or wholly incredible. Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. 25, 33 (1992). Applying these standards, I recommend that Plaintiff's complaint be dismissed for failure to state a claim.

Discussion

I. Factual allegations

Plaintiff Anthony Roberts, an inmate at the Ojibway Correctional Facility (OCF), filed this pro se civil rights action pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against Defendants Corrections Officer Thomas Obradovich, Corrections Officer Cory Wainio, and Corrections Officer Micki Sorensen. Plaintiff alleges in his complaint that on April 24, 2007, Defendant Obradovich directed prison officials to look through Plaintiff's property for UCC<sup>1</sup> material. Defendant Wainio subsequently confiscated Plaintiff's UCC information, despite the fact that Plaintiff had never received a hearing. Plaintiff told Defendant Wainio that he could not destroy the material without providing Plaintiff with an administrative hearing. Defendant Wainio responded that the material would be stored for 30 days or until Plaintiff exhausted his administrative remedies, but that it would be destroyed at the end of that time.

On June 13, 2007, Plaintiff learned that his UCC information had been destroyed before his administrative remedies had been exhausted. Plaintiff claims that he was unaware of any rule preventing him from possessing UCC materials for the purpose of studying the law. Plaintiff states that Defendants' conduct in denying him an administrative hearing, labeling him a security problem and reducing the likelihood of him receiving parole resulted in mental anguish. Plaintiff seeks compensatory and punitive damages, as well as injunctive relief.

II. Failure to state a claim

A complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted when it is clear that no relief could be granted under any set of facts that could be proved consistent with the allegations of the complaint. Jones v. City of Carlisle, 3 F.3d 945, 947 (6th Cir. 1993). To state a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, a plaintiff must allege the violation of a right secured by the federal Constitution or laws and must show that the deprivation was committed by a person acting under color of state law. West v. Atkins, 487 U.S. 42, 48 (1988); Street v. Corr. Corp. of Am., 102 F.3d 810, 814 (6th Cir. 1996). Because § 1983 is a method for vindicating federal rights, not a source of substantive rights itself, the first step in an action under § 1983 is to identify the specific constitutional right allegedly infringed. Albright v. Oliver, 510 U.S. 266, 271 (1994).

Plaintiff appears to be claiming that his due process rights were violated by the conduct of Defendants in confiscating certain documents and ordering their destruction without first giving Plaintiff an administrative hearing, thereby violating Plaintiff's Fourteenth Amendment due process rights. The Due Process Clause does not prohibit deprivation of property by the state; instead it prohibits such deprivations without due process of law. Parratt v. Taylor, 451 U.S. 527, 537 (1981), overruled in part on other grounds Daniels v Williams, 474 U.S. 327 (1986).

A plaintiff alleging infringement of property rights must show that the deprivation was caused by action taken pursuant to established state procedures. Hudson v. Palmer, 468 U.S. 517, 532 (1984); Logan v. Zimmerman Brush Co., 455 U.S. 422, 435-436 (1982). Plaintiff herein fails to make the required distinction between challenging the "established state procedure" itself and the failure of the state employee to follow that procedure. Id. If the official performing the state procedure fails to follow the state procedure or conform his conduct to state law, the plaintiff's injury is the result of a "random and unauthorized act" which the state was unable to foresee and thus prevent. In Parratt, the Supreme Court held that no procedural due process violation occurs when the deprivation is the result of a "random and unauthorized act," unless the state failed to provide the plaintiff with an "adequate post-deprivation remedy."

Application of the principles recited above to this case leads us to conclude the respondent has not alleged a violation of the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Although he has been deprived of property under color of state law, the deprivation did not occur as a result of some established state procedure. Indeed, the deprivation occurred as a result of the unauthorized failure of agents of the state to follow established state procedure. There is no contention that the procedures themselves are inadequate nor is there any contention that it was practicable for the State to provide a predeprivation hearing. Moreover, the State of Nebraska has provided respondent with the means by which he can receive redress for the deprivation.

Parratt, 451 U.S. at 543.

The Sixth Circuit has held that in procedural due process claims brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, the "Parratt doctrine" allows dismissal where the state provides an adequate postdeprivation remedy if:

1) the deprivation was unpredictable or "random"; 2) predeprivation process was impossible or impracticable; and 3) the state actor was not authorized to take the action that deprived the plaintiff of property or liberty.

Copeland v. Machulis, 57 F.3d 476, 479 (6th Cir. 1995); see also Pilgrim v. Littlefield, 92 F.3d 413, 416-417 (6th Cir. 1996). In cases where these conditions are present, "a procedural due process claim will not be stated unless the plaintiff pleads and proves that his available state remedies are inadequate to redress the wrong." Copeland, 57 F.3d at 479; Pilgrim, 92 F.3d at 417.

Plaintiff in this case has not demonstrated the absence of adequate state remedies for Defendants' alleged misconduct. Plaintiff allegedly filed a grievance regarding Defendants' behavior, which he was entitled to appeal through Step III. See MDOC PD 03.02.130(A)-(LL). It is unclear from the complaint whether Plaintiff appealed his grievance. In addition, Plaintiff had a right to pursue a claim through the Prisoner Benefit Fund per Policy Directive 04.02.110 for reimbursement of his lost property. Prisoners may also pursue claims of up to $1,000 through the State Administrative Board, or through the courts if over $1,000. See Policy Directive 04.07.112.

The fact that the remedies provided by the state do not provide all the relief which may be available under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 does not mean that the state remedies are ineffective. Parratt, 451 U.S. at 544. Therefore, pursuant to Parratt, Plaintiff's due process claims should be dismissed.

Recommended Disposition

Having conducted the review now required by the Prison Litigation Reform Act, I recommend that Plaintiff's complaint be dismissed for failure to state a claim pursuant to 28 U.S.C.

§§ 1915(e)(2) and 1915A(b), and 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(c). Should this report and recommendation be adopted, the dismissal of this action will count as a strike for purposes of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).

I further recommend that the Court find no good-faith basis for appeal within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(3). See McGore v. Wrigglesworth, 114 F.3d 601, 611 (6th Cir.

1997).
